Numb. 6021

The Daily Courant.

Tuesday, February 7. 1721.

Turin, January 18.

SIG. Sicardi, a noted Lawyer, is appointed to go to Vienna, to transact a secret Commission from the King, who, besides the Appointment of 1000 Crowns a Month, has also made him a Knight of the Order of St. Maurice. People reason variously as to the Subject of his Commission. The Bishop of Alba, who by his Disobedience to the King's Commands, brought his whole Family to Disgrace, is dead. Almost all the Bishopricks of this Country are vacant, and there is no Appearance of an Accommodation between this Court and that of Rome. Count Scaglia, Heir to the illustrious House of Verrue, is married to General Reibbinder's Daughter, Lady of Honour to the Queen. The Bankruptcy of Sig. Columba has been attended by that of Sig. Ruffin, and 'tis feared many others will follow; Letters from Venice and Genoa scarcely mention any thing else than such Disasters. Advices from Milan say, that several Persons have been seized, having considerable Sums of Money about them, which 'tis said have been misapplied from the Revenues of the Emperour, under the Administration of a certain deceas'd Minister.

Hague, Feb. 11. 'The Imperial Minister having taken Leave in Writing of the States General, in order to set out to Brussels and from thence to Cambray, assured them of his Care of their Interests in the ensuing Congress: Their High Mightinesses took those Assurances very kindly, and are determined to thank him for his very obliging Promises on that Head: It is generally taken for granted, that his ministerial Commission to the States will be continued to him notwithstanding he goes to the Congress.

'Time will evince the Sincerity of Offers made to serve the States at the ensuing Congress. When the Marquess Beretti Landi set out from hence, he said the handsomest things imaginable to that Score, and by order too, as 'tis reported, of the King his Master; nevertheless, the Dutch Ambassadour at Madrid has not yet been able to prevail upon that Court to order the Releasement of the Dutch Ship called the City of Rotterdam, which was some time ago seized at Cadiz, though no sort of proper Instances to obtain it have been wanting either here or at Madrid; and it is apprehended, that unless this State complies with the Demand of Sweden, in regard to the Papers of the late Baron Gortz, or his Secretary, the Dutch Minister at Stockholm may meet with Obstacles too in his Negociations which he did not expect.

'It is reported, that the King of Denmark objects against his Subjects executing in his own Dominions the Office of Consul, by virtue of Powers or Patents granted them from foreign States; and accordingly, 'tis said his Danish Majesty refuses to admit a Dutch Consul in Norway, in the Person of his own Subject: Whereupon the States design to remonstrate, that although it be most true that each Sovereign chooses rather to employ their own Subjects in Offices, preferably to others; nevertheless, for Conveniency-sake, that Proceeding is sometimes put by; that, it being to be considered that Consuls are not Publick Ministers, this State, therefore, has hitherto made no Difficulty in permitting their own Subjects to act in that and also in much higher Capacities by Commission from other States; and that his Danish Majesty appointed one Sanderson for his Commissary, at Amsterdam, who is a Subject of this State: Therefore their High Mightinesses desire their Consul at Norway may in like Manner be permitted to execute his Function, they not knowing at the time of his being named to that Employment, any thing of his Danish Majesty's Resolution to the contrary.

Paris, Feb. 12. A Reduction of Forces is again talked of, and Establishments are drawn out for that purpose; 'tis thought however, the Execution of that Design will not be compleated before the meeting of the Congress at Cambray.

The Turkish Ambassadour is expected here at the Beginning of the next Month.

On the 7th Instant, the Princess of Pons was brought to Bed of a Son; the House was illuminated at Night, and the Family made great Rejoycing on that Occasion.

It is said, that a Canal is ordered to be made at St. Quintin, to join the River Somme to the Seine.

The Curacy of S. Paul is given to the Abbé Gueret, Professor of the Sorbonne, one of Cardinal Noailles's Grand Vicars; accordingly he entred in Possession of it upon the 6th Instant. The Canons of S. Maur pretend to a Right of Nomination to that Curacy, and are going to Law about it: They alledge an Act of their Secularization, which gives them the Privilege once in a Hundred Years, of naming a Person to the Curacy of Paris, and having made no Choice since 1621, they insist upon doing it this Time.

It is reported, that the Arrêt which orders the Examination and Verification of Bank Bills, will be revoked: That, and other Alterations, it is said, have determined M. Pelletier de la Houssaye, Comptroller-General of the Finances, to desire his Dismission from his Employment; and 'tis conjectured, that in case his Request be granted, that Post will be conferred upon M. d'Armenonville, Secretary of State for the Marine Affairs, and Father to the Count de Morville, one of our Plenipotentiaries at the Congress of Cambray.

London, February 7.

Yesterday arrived a Mail from Flanders.

Constantinople, Dec. 6. On the 26th of the last Month, Sig. Emo, Ambassadour from the Republick of Venice, had his first publick Audience of the Grand Vizier, being conducted in great State and Magnificence: On the 29th, he had a publick Audience of the Grand Sultan, who was seated on his Throne under a Canopy beset with Pearls and Diamonds, having his eldest Son, a Prince of 11 Years of Age, seated on his right Hand, whose Habit likewise glittered with precious Stones: The Ambassadour having presented his Credentials, and made a low Obeisance to the Grand Sultan, was reconducted from the Hall of Audience, which was extreamly noble, to his own House, with the usual Ceremonies.

Madrid, Jan. 21. The King holds frequent Councils on Matters relating to the State; and 'tis said that an Express is sent to the Marquess de Leda, to return to Spain with the Army he commands in Africa, so soon as he has put Ceuta in a good Condition of Defence, and supplied it with a Garrison of 3000 Men, and a great Quantity of Stores, Ammunition, and Provision of all kinds; it being like to prove a very difficult, and almost impracticable Work to carry on the War against the Moors with Success, considering the Number of their Troops, and the mountainous and craggy Countries in which the Armies are obliged to act.

Hamburg, Feb. 6. Letters from Stockholm of the 23d of the last Month say, that the Occasion of the Arrest of M. Hopken the Swedish Resident, who came lately from Vienna, was upon account of his leaving that Court without his Majesty's Permission, and returning to Sweden under the Pretext of making a Report of Impertinence to the King, which the Duke of Holstein's Minister at Vienna had communicated to him, viz. That the Czar proposed the Duke to succeed to the Throne of Sweden after the Demise of their present Majesties: To assist the Duke with an Army of 100000 Men, and to permit him in the mean time to enjoy the Revenues and Countries of Finland and Livonia, which the Czar has conquered from the Crown of Sweden. Notwithstanding withstanding the Accounts of that Project, the Court of Sweden is pursuing its Design of having a good Fleet at Sea the next Summer, to defend themselves, in case the Methods taken already for procuring a Peace with the Muscovites should not succeed.
